

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

Among genealogists, bibliophiles and students, the evidence as to who was the original ancestor of the Onderdonk family in America is not considered entirely monyinging. Facts appear to be obscured by the mists of time. An old tradition is that all are descended from Dr. Adrian Van Der Donck, the author of the "History of the New Netherlands." Van Der Donck, who was born in 1620, married a daughter of the Rev. Francis Doughty. There is satisfactory evidence that after his death his widow married Hugh O'Neill, and they died childless in Maryland. Whether children were born by the first marriage cannot be clearly proven. There is a strong presumption that there were. It, however, is likewise true that it cannot be proven that there were no children. Dr. Van Der Donck was accompanied by a brother Daniel, who some claim was the progenitor of all the Onderdonks in America. The latter contention sometimes appears to be the more tenable.

The views of persons whose opinions are deemed worthy of consideration are therefore published in the appendix in the hope that theories may therefrom be evolved which will bring about in the minds of some of the present or future generation a hypothesis, or start an inquiry along lines that may eventually make clear the at present very cloudy and perplexing problem.

Correspondence, manuscripts, personal sketches and other data are also published with apologies, but with the desire to preserve such matter in print.

What does seem absolutely certain and proved is herein published as fact: That Andries (Adrianse) Onderdonk, who must have been born before 1653, lived subsequently at New Castle, Del., and died about 1686 at Jamaica, L. I. His wife was Maria Van Der Vliet, and they are the progenitors of all whose names appear in the following genealogy. A picture of the house where they resided at Cow Neck near Manhasset is herewith published. The house was later occupied by Minne Onderdonk and lastly by Peter Onderdonk.

Many errors in dates and locations and in spelling may be discovered, but if so they are unintentional, and any one who may have attempted to collate data such as the following will appreciate that they are absolutely unavoidable.

Any to which the publishers' attention is called will be noted.

In closing, the thanks of the compiler are gratefully expressed for information furnished him by many members of the family, particularly to the late Henry Onderdonk, Jr., of Jamaica, L. I., to Professor Henry Onderdonk of Maryland and his son, Professor Adrian H. Onderdonk, and to Mr. Chauncey K. Buchanan.

I Andries Adrianse Onderdonk was a native of New Castle, Delaware, according to his marriage record. He appeared in Flatbush as early as 1672, when he purchased land there. His name appears on the list of communicants of the Dutch Church at Flatbush from 1677 to 1685, when he removed to Jamaica, and died there before August 13, 1687, killed, it is said, by the upsetting of a load of straw.

He married at Flatbush, L. I., Nov. 11, 1683, Maria, dau. of Dirck Janse Van der Vliet. She married her second husband, Jacob Janse Vanderbilt, August 13, 1687.

In a return of Capt. Thomas Tredwell's train band, dated Hempstead, Sept. 17, 1715, Adrean Onderdonck's name appears as a "train souldier" (Annual Report of the State Historian, N. Y., I, 497).

In 1731 he subscribed £6 15s. towards the new building of the Reformed Dutch Church at Success, L. I.

Adrian removed with his family to Rockland County about 1745, for in August of that year he and his wife, Sara Snediker, joined the Reformed Dutch Church at Tappan, by certificate. Their home was near the "Quarries," near Nyack.

10 Maria Onderdonk (Adrian, Andries), b. April 21, 1725, at Jamaica, L. I.; d. —; m., 1747, Philip Servent. He was b. in 1721 in Holland, d. Aug. 15, 1786, at Upper Nyack, N. Y.

Philip Sarvent came from Holland at the age of 13, and was employed as a farm laborer by Cornelius Cuyper. He remained with him 13 years, and then (1747) purchazed his employer's farm of 55 acres. This farm was situated in what is to-day Upper Nyack, Rockland Co., N. Y. On this property he remained until his death in 1786. He had four sons, Philip, Adrian, Abraham and Garret, two of whom died on this place. The old stone house which was purchased by Philip stood about 100 yards from the river. The bricks with which the chimney was built were brought from Holland. This old house was removed about 1853.

During the struggle for independence the British fleet was, at one time, anchored in the river directly in front of the farm, and a foraging party which was sent ashore in two row-galleys attempted to land near the house. The movements of the enemy had been observed, and Adrian Sarvent, Cornelius Cuyper, Peter Freeland, Henry Palmer and Major Smith went to the river's edge and poured into them such a deadly volley of musket balls that they were compelled to return to the vessels. The fleet then opened a retaliating fire and planted a number of six-pound balls in the ground around them. At first these old cannon balls were not looked upon as curiosities, and as they were brought to the surface they were sold as old iron. But after a time a greater value began to be attached to them, and they were more carefully preserved. The last one found on the place is in the possession of the present owner (1884) and is prized very highly.

In those days there were no burglar and fire-proof vaults in which to store valuables, and the settlers were often obliged to bury whatever they wished to keep from the enemy. Philip had a large clock, which he prized highly, and when the British were in this vicinity he placed it in a box, carried it to Esquire Pye's, and buried it under one corner of his barn. He is buried in the old burying ground at Upper Nyack. His stone reads: "In memory of Mr. Phip. Sarvent who died August A. D. 15, 1786, in the 65th year of his age."

Hendrick Onderdonk was a member of the Committee of Safety, in Queens County, during the Revolution.

Hendrick Onderdonk, if not the founder, was chief promoter of the growth of Roslyn. He started there in 1758 with a county store; his grist mill soon became a great flouring establishment, and his bakehouse enabled him to ship biscuit as well as flour to the West Indies. He closed his prosperous career by establishing in 1773 the first paper mill on Long Island. He had from time to time bought up much of the land skirting the mill swamp, but owing to the premature death of his son Andrew, as well as his own advancing years, he gradually parted with most of his property and retired from active life. In 1797 he sold out in part to his sons, William and Benjamin. In 1801 Daniel Hoagland and Abm. Coles bought the farm of 63 acres and the mill for $12,500. The paper mill passed into the hands of the Valentines. Hendrick moved into the new house built by his son, where he died March 31, 1809, in his 85th year.

A man of such enterprise, integrity and intelligence was not allowed to confine his labors to his own private business. He was often called into public life. Several times before the Revolution he had been chosen supervisor of the town. At the first election held on the Island after the Revolutionary War, on Monday, Dec. 29, 1783, he, with Benjamin Coe, Sam. Riker and James Townsend, was chosen to represent Queens County in the Assembly held in New York, from Jan. 21 to May 12, 1784.

Being connected by the marriage of his wife and daughter with families in the British interest, Mr. Onderdonk took a moderate course in the Revolutionary War, so that he preserved the respect of both parties. His daughter had in 1774 married Lambert Moore, Esq., comptroller of his majesty's customs.

Mr. Onderdonk had married a dau. of Colonel Benjamin Tredwell of Great Neck. Probably she was unable to speak Dutch, the language of her husband. He had their first ten children baptized in the Reformed Church from 1751 to 1767, but about 1763 they began to attend St. George's Church in Hempstead occasionally, where their last two children were baptized, in 1770 and 1776.

Mr. Onderdonk never failed in his esteem of his old Dutch friends. Once there was some company at his house, and the young people were holding up to ridicule the peculiarities and oddities of Peter and Charity Hegeman of Cedar Swamp, who were great sticklers for old fashions. After they had got through their fun, Mr. Onderdonk quietly summed up the argument in these words: "Well, whatever you may think, I say Peter is a good man and Dorothy a good woman." When his son, Dr. John, began to practice, he boarded with this old worthy Peter and Charity for a short time, till he removed to the city (New York).

Mrs. Onderdonk was a worthy woman. Once when her servant girl was lacing her dress from behind, she suddenly turned her head to speak to her, when the tine of the fork which the wench held in her hand to draw the cord through the holes entered her mistress's eye so that she lost the use of it. The pen of affection has traced, in the Evening Post, this tribute of regard to her memory: "Died on Dec. 19, 1801, at Hempstead Harbor, in the 72nd year of her age, Mrs. Phæbe, wife of Hendrick Onderdonk, Esquire; long respected and beloved, long, very long her loss will be remembered and lamented."

"1771 Nov. 17. Died of putrid fever at St. Eustatia, where he had lately settled, Dr. Benjamin Onderdonk, age 20, oldest son of Hendrick Onderdonk of Long Island, a young gentleman of very amiable character and much lamented by all the inhabitants."

"1773 Oct. 11. The printer of the New York Mercury in conjunction with two of his friends, Henry Remsen and Hendrick Onderdonk, having lately erected a paper mill at Hempstead Harbor at a very great expense, the existence of which entirely depends on a supply of rags which are too often thrown in the fire, or swept out of doors, and are now much wanted, he therefore most humbly entreats the assistance of the good people of this province and city in particular to assist him in the undertaking, which will be a saving of some hundred per annum to the colony, which has constantly been sent out of it, for paper of all sorts for the past forty years, the manufacturing of which has but very lately originated here. The highest price will be given for rags by the public's servant, Hugh Gaine."

"1760 Aug. 13. Cow Neck. Hendrick Onderdonk offers £6 reward for a runaway negro named Primus, a likely, well looking fellow, speaks English and the Low Dutch, plays on the violin and can read and write. He had on a castor hat and gray satteen coat lined with brown camblet and yellow metal buttons on it. He also carried off a green everlasting jacket lined with shalloon, a pair of black everlasting breeches and check trousers, a fine linen homespun and Osnabrig's shirt and a pair of pumps. He has attended a grist mill and is likely he will forge a pass."

"1782. List of articles belonging to Hendrick Onderdonk, taken out of Mr. Allen's mill, Great Neck. by Mr. Brown or some hands belonging to his whale-boat, valued at a moderate computation, 16£.

Seven ruffed shirts.

One cotton shirt.

One night-cap.

Two pillow cases.

Two waistcoats.

One pair sheets.

Six pair stockings.

Three cambric stocks.

Four handkerchiefs."

"To his Excellency George Clinton. Esq. Gov. of the State of New York.

"Hempstead Harbor
"April 10, 1783

"We the subscribers, being Committee appointed by sundry persons of Flushing, Hempstead, and Oysterbay, in Queens Co, to congratulate your Excellency on the return of peace and the Independence of the U. S. of America, and at the same time to express to your Excellency our apprehensions of the dangerous situations we shall be in, before civil government takes place, we wish to have your Excellency's advice in what manner we are to proceed. The election of a Governor for this State we are informed is approaching and we think ourselves entitled to a voice. With our fellow citizens of the State we beg to have your Excellency's opinion and advice and the bearer, Mr. Andrew Onderdonk has directions to explain our intentions and wishes more at large.

Samuel Townsend Hendrick Onderdonk Joseph Lawrence"

"1783 Dec. 2. Samuel Townsend, Hendrick Onderdonk, John Sands, Daniel Whitehead Kissam, and Prior Townsend in behalf of the people of Queens Co, crave the interposition of the Council of State, and say that Richard Barack, Joseph Alexander and Joseph Lockwood, whaleboat men have been apprehended and confined in North Hempstead, charged with robbery. At present they are guarded by Queens Co. militia, at considerable expense, there being no jail in the county."

"About 12 o'clock Saturday night the door of Hendrick Onderdonk's at Hempstead Harbor was forced open with a bayonet. Andrew, his son, hearing the noise, met the robbers at the door and received a cut in his forehead, when he extricated himself and made his way through the east door crossing the creek and ran to John Rogers, blacksmith, and gave the alarm. Meantime the robbers found a gold watch and other articles. A mug of gold pieces in a cupboard escaped their search. Some of the most costly had been taken from the store and purposely distributed about the house. The robbers went upstairs, Mr. Onderdonk resolutely following and telling them not to go in a certain room, as his daughters were there. They hastily picked up some rolls of fine goods and velvet and put them under their arms and hurried down stairs, Mr. Onderdonk following at their heels, pulling away a piece now and then till they got out of the house. There were a number of active young men in the harbor, and the soldiers had no mind to wait and have a brush with them. They pretended to be whaleboat men, were disguised and had their faces painted. The robbers were soon discovered, for an unlucky soldier billeted at Searingtown wore a stolen shoe that Jack Gelder (who was making shoes at the same house) recognized as one he had made at Hendrick Onderdonk's, with locust pegs, when his maple fell short. An investigation took place, and the stolen property was found in possession of Col. Ludlow's men billeted at Herrick's.

"Hendrick Onderdonk's wagon driven by Chas. Hubbs was taken to the Jerseys and recovered after 8 months absence. It had served two six-pounders at White Plains. Great numbers of impressed teams were lost and never paid for."

"1785. Feb. 26. John Allen and others, Benjamin Coles and others, Hendrick Onderdonk and others, Henry Allen and others, William Simonson and others, William McCoun and others, petition the Legislature for a law to raise money for a Court House and jail in Queens Co."

"1786. July 10. Daniel and Altie Rapalje for $4\pounds$, sell a burying ground at Flower Hill to Adrian, Peter and Hendrick Onderdonk, Martin Schenck, Ann Rapalje, Thomas Dodge, Andries Hegeman, Sr. & Jr., and Elbert Hegeman, Sr. & Jr."

"1789 Jan. 24. Jacob Marvin and one hundred and nine others, inhabitants, pray the Legislature that north and south Hempstead may be re-united. William Thorne and one hundred and eleven others; Hendrick Onderdonk and ninety-seven others, and Richard Valentine and sixty-six others all inhabitants of North Hempstead, petition against a re-union and pray to remain separate."

"1790 April 24. Washington, in his diary, says: "Left Mr. Young's before six o'clock on Saturday, and passing Mosquito Cove, breakfasted at Mr. (Hendrick) Underdunck's, at the head of a little bay (Hempstead Harbor) where we were kindly received and well entertained. This gentleman works a grist and two paper mills, the last of which he seems to carry on with spirit and to profit. Hence to Flushing where we dined; thence through Newtown to Brooklyn, the road very fine and the country in a high state of cultivation. Before sundown we had crossed the ferry and were at home."

The house of Hendrick Onderdonk in which Washington breakfasted is still standing.

Adrian Onderdonk, Dep. ch'm."

"On Saturday, Sept. 21, 1776, the day after the great fire in N. Y., a detachment of Col. Birch's 17th Light Dragoons visited Great Neck, Cow Neck, and in the afternoon they reached the house of Adrian Onderdonk, which they instantly surrounded, when an officer went in and searched every part up and down stairs, thrusting his sword into every secret place. The object of their pursuit happened to be at home, and on being arrested, he asked the reason of it, and in reply was informed "that your neighbors complain of you." The officer then mounted his horse and rode off with the troopers, perhaps in quest of other Whigs on Cow Neck.

Adrian Onderdonk was taken as far as Flushing and shut up in the Friends' Meeting House that night. The next day he was taken to New York, and on his arrival at the city he with other prisoners were paraded, with a gang of loose women marching before them to add insult to suffering.

Col. Graydon says a like insult was offered the American prisoners taken at Fort Washington.

The horrors of imprisonment were aggravated by the uncalled for brutality of Capt. Cunningham, Keeper Provost. One day as he was walking through the rooms followed by his constant attendant, a negro, with coils of rope on his neck, he asked Adrian Onderdonk what he was imprisoned for. "I've been a committee man." "Well! (with an oath and a deal of abuse) you shall hang to-morrow."

After he had been confined nearly four weeks, his mind daily harassed with the dreadful forebodings of death, without a hearing, whenever it might suit the whim of his cruel jailor, Elbert Hegeman, afterward Judge, went to Col. ——— and asked him if he had any new complaint against Adrian Onderdonk, for if he had not he should avail himself of Howe's Proclamation and get him released, as his family were suffering severely from sickness, two of his children having died in one day. The Colonel replied: "For his suffering family he felt sorry, but as for the d--- rebel he did not care what became of him." He added, however, that he had no fresh complaint. Elbert Hegeman thereupon went to New York, and called on Lambert Moore (nephew of the prisoner and Comptroller of Customs) to learn how to proceed. They first went to Sheriff Roberts, a friend of Hendrick Onderdonk (brother of the prisoner), who gave them a line to General Robertson, who thereupon issued an order for the liberation of the prisoner.

They then repaired to the Provost. As they approached the guards made way and they entered the prison door. The prisoner at first did not recognize his deliverers. They soon made themselves known, and informed him that he might now take the benefit of the Proclamation and be restored to his family. He was confused and bewildered, and as his senses became collected, they conversed with him on his family affairs. He was brought home in a wagon by Elbert Hegeman in the night, pale, thin and feeble from sufferings and mental anxiety. His shattered constitution never recovered its former strength. He told

Col. —— the first time he saw him after his release that the sufferings had deprived him of the hearing of one ear. "Then, d—— you, look out for the other also," was his brutal reply.

Adrian Onderdonk had been Deputy Chairman of the committee for Cow Neck, Great Neck, etc., and it became his duty to grant passes to those wishing to leave the county and preside at meetings where resolutions offensive to the Loyalists were often passed, hence, though a mild and moderate man, he naturally from his position incurred their resentment. After the defeat at Brooklyn he left his home, and was concealed for two or three weeks at Jacob Vanderbilt's, Huntington. He then came in on the faith of the British Proclamation and gave up to Sir Wm. Erskine on Long Island, in violation of which he was cast into prison.

While Adrian Onderdonk was yet in Provost, Capt. Stephen Thorne rode up to his house, and as he sat on his horse said in the course of conversation with Onderdonk's wife that "the Declaration of Independence was an expensive thing." She replied (perhaps to conciliate his good will) that her husband did not approve of it either, and thought it was going too far, but as it was the will of the majority he fell in with it. During the armed occupation of Queens Co. the Loyalists had frequent opportunities of insulting the Whigs. Immense quantities of cord wood were carted to Onderdonk's landing (now called Pearsalls). The gates were often left open, and if his son, tired of driving out stray cattle, should request a carter to shut the gate, "Your father is not chairman of the committee now" would be the ready taunt, and if the father should venture a like request he would be greeted with, "You d---- Dutch rebel, I'll go on board the man-of-war (meaning the jail-ship in Cow Bay) and complain of you for hindering me from carting the King's wood."

From an old account book of Peter Onderdonk of Flower Hill, L. I.

"Sept. 14, 1776. My wagons and horses entered the King's service.

Nov. 21, 1776. My son Andrew who had been taken as a driver, returned home sick, leaving my wagon and horses.

Nov. 13, 1782. Cap. Westerhagen came here with his company to quarter (a German hireling) and with violence drove my sick daughter Elizabeth and Jannetie Rapalye out of their sick bed. Ingratitude he quit his quarters here Jan. 7 a German hireling."

This note-book is said to be preserved at Washington, D. C.

It is not known when the British first came to North Hempstead, but probably immediately after Washington left the Island. Their light horse hunted out the leading Whigs and impressed wagons.

Peter Onderdonk's son, Andries (Andrew), and a nephew, Peter Dodge, were impressed (and who can tell how many more?) with teams and attended the army at Newtown, White Plains and Fort Washington. They returned home sick with camp fever, and were both buried in December.

The house, a fine one in its day, was torn down about 20 years ago, condemned by the City of New York, because on the shore of the Kensico reservoir. Abram Hoogland was a deacon in the Wolver Hollow Reformed Dutch Church in 1791. Two years later he went to New York and engaged in the grocery business, under the firm name of Hoogland & Onderdonk, from 1804 to 1808, at which time he was also Assistant Alderman of the Eighth Ward. In April, 1809, he removed with his family to what is now Union Centre, Broome Co., N. Y. (near Owego), where he bought over 300 acres of land, and upon it made his home. An interesting account of the family's travels to this wild country may be found in the Hoogland Genealogy.

56 Joseph Onderdonck' (Adrian, Andries, Andries) was b. March 12, 1766, at Manhasset, L. I. (Cow Neck); d. Feb. 8, 1852, at Flower Hill, Manhasset, L. I.; m. on Aug. 13, 1789, Dorothy Monfoort of Cedar Swamp. She was b. Dec. 21, 1767, at Manhasset (Cow Neck), d. May 5, 1848, at Manhasset.

Died at Flower Hill, Manhasset, Long Island, Feb. 8, 1852, Joseph Onderdonk, in the 86th year of his age. He was born at Cow Bay, Long Island, and so was but little over ten years old at the time of the Declaration of Independence, a copy of which in the form of a handbill was sent to his father, Adrian Onderdonk, who was Deputy Chairman of the Whig Committee. This he read aloud to his father's family, as they were called together for that purpose after the noontide meal. The events of the Revolution were deeply impressed on his mind. He saw the first movements of organizing Whig committees and diffusing Whig principles. After the enemy got possession of Long Island he saw the British Light Horse 17th Dragoons when they rode up to his father's house (Sept. 21) and carried him off a prisoner to the Provost in New York.

He also walked amid the ruins of the great fire in New York in 1776 and saw the naked walls of Trinity Church as they stood black and crumbling from the effects of the heat. He heard while at work in his father's cornfield the booming of cannon at the battle of White Plains. He recollected being in the harvest field in 1778, when his Uncle Hendrick Onderdonk rode in express with an extra Gazette containing the news of the battle of Monmouth. He caught the smallpox from a British soldier of the Refugee Corps lying at Herricks.

In the hard winter of 1780 he saw the British outposts as they were marching through the snow knee deep, having been called in from the east end of the island for the protection of New York City.

At the time Burr's store in Manhasset Valley was robbed and the owner shot, he was patrolling with a gun in the locusts near his father's house, and saw the whaleboats as they quietly dropped down the bay, and even came in contact with one of the robber crew who had escaped with a wound in the chin. He had occasionally to serve as wagoner to the British forces in carting wood and warlike stores, and was once sent with his father's team to transport soldiers' rations from the Dutch Church in Jamaica (then used by the enemy as a storehouse) to Colonel Wormb's quarters at Westbury. At the evacuation of the island in 1783, he, being impressed with his father's team, assisted in removing the baggage of camp followers from Success Church by way of Black Stump to Newtown. He saw the execution at Jamaica Nov. 2, 1784, of two men who robbed Thomas

Thorne, east side of Manhasset. He often used to repeat in Dutch language portions of the prayer of Dominie Rubell, a Tory, who, in his Sabbath Day intercessions, never forgot our good King George III, Charlotte and the Princes and Princesses of the royal family, as well as the Lords of Parliament. He also saw one of the eye-witnesses of the execution of Nathan Hale (who was captured near Huntington), from whose lips he heard a circumstantial account of the spy's last movements. He was present at the Federal procession in New York (July 23, 1788) and at the inauguration of Washington (Apr. 30, 1789) as President of the U.S. He was a spectator in Congress (Feb. 11, 1700) when a petition from Friends against the slave trade was presented, and heard Mr. Burke of South Carolina denounce it and wish it disposed of at once, so that these people (pointing to Friends in gallery), who sit with hats on, while others have the decency to take them off, might go home about their business.

He often saw Washington, sometimes arm in arm with Clinton in Cherry Street on his walks out of town, calling now and then at the shipyard where he was at work. He once saw him raise his hand to his hat in recognition of a respectful salutation from a negro.

He became a thrifty, intelligent farmer, an early friend of the temperance cause, always took one or more newspapers, was a great reader and ever ready for improvements in agriculture. He was among the first of neighbors to buy ashes and other manures from the city, and was much given to the culture of fruit and other trees. He even planted the nut from which grew a black walnut tree of such magnitude as to make, when cut down and sawed up into planks, coffins for himself and wife.

At the age of twenty Lansing Onderdonk united with the Reformed Church at Athens, N. Y. In 1831 he married Miss Maria Witbeck of Athens, N. Y., who died in 1849, leaving six children. His second wife was Eunice Langdon of Fort Plain, N. Y. In 1854 he moved to Wisconsin, and in 1865 to Illinois, locating at Poplar Grove, in Boone Co., where he resided for 25 years, and at which place his second wife died. In 1891 he came to Nebraska.

In his old age he was an exceedingly active man, and his erect form was a familiar object upon the streets of Genoa, Neb., which he walked without even the aid of a cane. Only a few days before his death he celebrated his 90th birthday. Death claimed him suddenly, and he died without the least pain, his last sickness being the first one during his long life. He was respected and loved by the whole community, who mourn his departure. His remains were taken to his old home in Illinois.

Eunice Langdon was converted in her youth, and during her residence in Fort Plain, N. Y., she was a member of the Reformed Church, transferring her relations to the Congregational Church of Poplar Grove, Ill., on her removal West. She loved the church, and, though for many months she was deprived of the privilege of attending public service, she did not fail to offer her prayers for its prosperity and bestow her means for its support. Her life in common with others was flecked with sunshine and shadow, and held its proportion of joy and grief, of labor and rest. She performed every duty so scrupulously that sometimes her methods amounted almost to a fault, yet so few of us err upon this side.

Would that there were no greater vice than to pursue a virtue too vigorously!

In 1835 she married Mr. Witbeck at Westerlo, Albany Co., N. Y., and in that vicinity they established their new home. At once that home became the center of attraction and was conspicuous for its genial hospitality and its atmosphere of genuine cordiality. In the days of her youth she gave her heart into God's keeping, and the consciousness of His acceptance was so deep and sure that the succeeding years were filled with a sense of measureless content and peace as the result of that early consecration. Quiet in speech, unassuming in manner, her whole life was an earnest witness of her steadfast faith in God, and the evidence that His grace is sufficient for the trial of a long and toilsome journey.

John Onderdonk was reared in Albany Co., N. Y., at Dormansville. His grandfather, John, lived in the family for perhaps half a century. John Onderdonk became a teacher during his young manhood and married Harriet Ward, who was also reared at Dormansville. In church relations they were Dutch Reformed. He first settled at Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., as a farmer. He developed a fondness for occasional dealings in real estate.

After the death of his first wife, he married Maria Sammons, and removed from Sharon to Canajoharie in Montgomery Co., somewhere near 1832 or 1833. About 1836 he sold his farm at a good advance and removed to Little York in Cortland Co., N. Y. Here he soon sold out at a profit, and bought an adjoining farm about 1837. This farm was also sold at a profit in about two years. He then moved near to the town of Homer of the same county about 1839. In 1842 he again moved to Greece, Monroe Co., N. Y., near Rochester, where he purchased to advantage. This farm he improved for some years, and sold it at a profit, and bought a near-by farm about 1848 or 1849. This in turn was soon sold at an advance, and he again purchased at Wilson, Niagara Co., N. Y., about the spring of 1850. In 1851 his son Peter died of consumption. As it seemed that Gilbert, another son, was about to succumb to the same disease, in October of the same year he went to Texas, where he now lives. John Onderdonk sold his Wilson property and bought at Holly, Orleans Co., N. Y., where he died.

When 18 years of age, Andrew Onderdonk went to Sloansville, Schoharie Co., N. Y. Married, and resided there some four or five years. He then moved to Leeville, N. Y., where he united with the Baptist Church, and was soon after elected a deacon in that body. This office he filled with the respect and confidence of his brethren, and was marked for his strong sense and practical judgment. In 1857 he left Deansville, N. Y., and moved to Hamilton, N. Y.; bought the place at Broad Street formerly owned and for many years occupied by the Rev. Jacob Knapp. Here Mr. Onderdonk lived for 44 years, a faithful member and a regular attendant of the Baptist Church. He had the confidence of the community as a citizen of integrity, uprightness and thrift. Few men have attained the age of 90 and retained the vitality, both physical and mental, which he possessed. Until within a few months of his death he walked the streets, erect, and with the vigor of a man of 60.

Hagaman Onderdonk, a lifelong resident of Nyack, N. Y., lived to the good old age of 75 years. Few men were better known throughout the country than was Mr. Onderdonk. When a young man he served as under sheriff under Sheriff Asbury of Haverstraw, and later was elected sheriff, and served from 1849 to 1852. He also held the offices of assessor, collector and supervisor of Orangetown. At one time he held a place in the Custom House in New York City, and was for many years in the real estate and insurance business. Having led a life of honor and usefulness, he died in the Christian faith.

John V. Onderdonk, for some time after learning the carpenter's trade, carried on business in New York City as a builder, and in five years erected 97 houses, I theatre and 2 churches, besides a large number of stables and factories. Soon after 1858 he moved to Nyack, where he was one of the builders up of the village in the prosperous era that followed the close of the rebellion. He purchased a tract of land in South Nyack, and laid out Washington Avenue, where he erected ten fine houses at his own expense. He then bought land and built the row of brick stores on Main Street, Nyack, known as "Onderdonk Block," and a row of brick cottages near, known as "Cottage Row." The Onderdonk water works was also established by him. After retiring from enterprises of this kind, owing to the panic of 1873, in which he, like so many others, went bankrupt, he started a newspaper, The Independent Advertiser, which gained notoriety as "John V.'s Paper," owing to its being conducted as a radical temperance advocate, and waging bitter war on the saloons. Owing to its fierce attacks on the rum sellers, Mr. Onderdonk was personally assaulted on several occasions, knocked down by roughs and horse-whipped by women whose names had been published. With the exception of one man who was far wealthier, no man ever put up so many buildings in Nyack at his own risk and expense.

In April, 1859, he removed to Albany and commenced his work as a teacher, his first position being the principalship of school No. 13. After 18 years of service at that school he was transferred to the principalship of school No. 21. In 1886 he was appointed professor of natural science at the Albany High School, a position which he held until his retirement in 1905. Prof. Onderdonk has been a frequent lecturer before scientific and literary societies, and in the winter of 1893 gave the State Univer-

In the summer of 1897 he was given a free trip to Europe by the Argus as a result of a popular voting contest in which he was declared to be the most popular teacher in Albany. Upon his retirement in 1905 he was tendered a public dinner by the school officials, teachers and citizens of Albany. Resides at 136 Plant Avenue, Webster Groves Station, St. Louis, Mo.

- 286 Gilbert' Onderdonk (John', Peter', John', Andries', Adrian', Andries') was b. Sept. 30, 1829, at Sharon, N. Y.; m., on Oct. 23, 1855, Martha Jane Benham, b. May 21, 1837, at Hopkinsville, Kentucky. She was a dau. of Shaderick A. Benham and Martha Ann Lander.

Gilbert, from his boyhood, developed a fancy for horticultural pursuits, and at the age of twelve years began to try to improve the potato from the seed of the potato balls. In 1846 he took premium at the New York State Fair for the production of twenty-two new varieties of potatoes thus originated. In 1847, as he was about to go to school, the collection was sold to a local nurseryman, who disseminated them in his own name. Gilbert left the local school in 1847 to attend Cortland Academy in Homer, N. Y. From the academy he went to the New York State Normal College in Albany, where he graduated in the fall of 1849. Failing health compelled removal to a southern climate in 1851, when he removed to southwest Texas. Here he found indications of adaptation to fruit culture, but no fruits except the natural products of the country. For half a century he has labored faithfully to build up a list of fruit, ornamental plants, etc., adapted to the land of his adoption, the land that restored him to health. Three times he has been sent to Mexico on pomological study and exploration for the government. Mr. Onderdonk has done much for mankind, and his existence has been for the world's gain. He lives at Nursery, Texas, with his faithful old wife, and is postmaster at that place.

Rev. Frank Scovill Onderdonk received a part of his education at the Southwestern University at Georgetown, Texas. He entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, about the year 1892. He served at San Diego, Texas, two years, and at Laredo, on the Rio Grande River, three years. He was transferred to foreign missionary work in 1897 and stationed at San Luis Potosi of the Central Mexican Conference. While there he became presiding elder. He was next stationed as pastor of the Messiah Church in Mexico City. He next became presiding elder of the Guadalajara district, in which capacity he served five years, in a widely distributed and very laborious field. He next became president of the Wesley Theological College at San Luis Potosi, which position he now occupies. He is doing a valuable work in helping to evangelize and improve the civilization of that country, and has a wonderful hold on the people. Six feet five and a half inches in height and weighing over two hundred pounds, with physical strength in proportion, he is, we might say, a giant. Proud are his aged father and mother of their missionary boy, whom they see leading a life of honor and usefulness.

Adrian Onderdonk. This prominent man and ardent Whig of the Revolution was a descendant of Andries Van der donck, who emigrated from Holland to this country about the year 1650 in company with his brother, Adrian Van der donck, LL. D., who, on his return to Holland, wrote the "History of New York," which has recently been translated from the Dutch and published by the N. Y. Historical Society. The two brothers left Holland in company. Dr. Van der donck returned to Holland, but his brother. Adrain Andries Van der donck-the common ancestor of all the Onderdonks in this country—settled here. Some portion of his descendants removed to Nyack in Rockland County, but they mostly continued upon Long Island. The letters Va were subsequently stricken from the name and the letter O substituted in its place, at an early day, by common consent, and the letter u was by common consent omitted from the latter part of the name about 60 years ago. Justice Onderdonk suffered much from his unwavering adherence to the Whig cause, and was seized by the minions of the King and imprisoned at different times, his cattle were driven away and slaughtered for food for the Hessians, and he was constantly under the surveillance of the Royalists; his timber and woodland was cut down and destroyed for fuel at the instigation of the Tories in that neighborhood and other uses for the British soldiers, who were then encamped upon his premises at a spot about 20 rods west of the present dwelling house of his grandson, Horatio G. Onderdonk.

Hendrick Onderdonk was a brother of the above Adrian. He was a man of great public spirit and enterprise, and the village of Hempstead Harbour was almost wholly indebted to him for its origin and growth; his son, Andrew, established here about a century ago the first paper mill ever erected in America, and at which by a peculiar process the paper for all the banknotes or paper money of the day then issued in this country was manufactured; the mode of manufacturing which was considered and kept secret, though it was known that a great quantity of red silk was used, so as to make it difficult to counterfeit it. These gentlemen were the proprietors of the mills now owned by Messrs. Valentine and gave employ and business to a great number of the inhabitants. His son, Dr. John Onderdonk, resided in New York, and was the father of both the present Bishops Onderdonk.

H. G. O., 1830.

HENRY F. JONES' ACCOUNT OF ANCESTRY OF THE ONDERDONK FAMILY.

The Common Ancestor of the Onderdonks of Long Island was Hendrick Van der donk. His brother, Dr. Adrian Van der donk, wrote a "History of New Netherlands" about the year 1650, and was the first Dutch lawyer settled in the colony. The son of Hendrick was Aaron, who settled on the north side of the island, where his son, Andrew, was born. His son, Hendrick, was born there Dec. 11, 1724. May 20, 1750, he married Phebe, daughter of Col. Benjamin Tredwell (and sister to the late Dr. Benjamin Tredwell). Her mother was a daughter of Major Epenetus Platt, of Huntington (sister of Dr. Lophar Platt). This last named Hendrick erected the first grist mill at Hempstead Harbour, and died March 31, 1809; his wife, born July 12, 1730, died Dec. 19, 1801. Their children were as follows:

- 1. Benjamin, born April 13, 1751, and died young.
- 2. Gertrude, born Feb. 4, 1755, married Lambert Moore, and died Oct. 8, 1785.
- 3. Andrew, born May 6, 1756, and married Mary, daughter of the said Lambert Moore, by his first wife. He built the first paper mill at Hempstead Harbour, and died Sept. 24, 1797.
- 4. Sarah, born March 26, 1788, married David Richard Floyd Jones, Sept. 20, 1785, and is still living in her 85th year.
- 5. Henry, born Feb. 1, 1760, and died March 29,
- 6 Maria, born Nov. 25, 1761, and died unmarried Feb. 1, 1841.
- 7. John, born Aug. 22, 1763, and married Deborah, daughter of Wm. Ustick; he was a physician, and died Aug. 23, 1832; his widow died April 28, 1837.
- 9. William, born Jan. 12, 1767, and is still living, unmarried.
- 10. Samuel, born Aug. 31, 1770, and died Oct. 7, 1780.
- 11. Benjamin, born Jan. 25, 1776, and died, unmarried, April 15, 1834.

The children of Dr. and Deborah Onderdonk are: Henry Ustick, now Bishop of Pennsylvania; Benjamin Tredwell, Bishop of New York; Susanna, Elizabeth, Phoebe, and Mary, the four last unmarried.

Mrs. Sarah Floyd Jones has two children, Thomas and Henry. The first born July 28, 1788; the latter born Jan. 3, 1792.

Copied the above from memoranda lent to me by B. F. Thompson, Esq., July 6, 1842, and which was furnished to him by Henry F. Jones, Esq.

H. G. O.

FROM A MANUSCRIPT IN THE HANDWRIT-ING OF JUDGE HORATIO G. ONDER-DONK ABOUT 1870.

Dr. Adrian Van Der donck, who wrote the history of the New Netherlands, came over from Holland, accompanied by a brother of his, whose name is not known (now supposed to be Daniel, Ed.).

Dr. Van Der donck left no descendants in America so far as can be ascertained.

The brother who accompanied him from Holland was the ancestor of the persons in America who bear the name of Onderdonk.

Andries or Andrus Onderdonk, more commonly known as Judge or Justice Onderdonk, great-grand-father of the Bishops Onderdonk, Judge Horatio G. Onderdonk, Henry and James M. Onderdonk, Henry F. Jones and Thomas F. Jones, and the grandfather of Dr. John Onderdonk, Joseph Onderdonk, Minne Onderdonk and ——— Onderdonk, and the father of Hendrick, Adrian and Peter Onderdonk, is the most remote ancestor respecting whom any certain knowledge can be obtained. He was born March 19, 1686, and resided at Flower Hill on Cow Bay in a dwelling house later occupied by Minne Onderdonk, and still later by Peter Onderdonk. He was buried in a private cemetery about 40 rods east of his residence. He had four sons, Hendrick, 1724-1809, Adrian, 1726-94, and Peter, 1730-93. Andries, the oldest, moved away to Rockland County. His daughters were Gertrury, born Aug. 22, 1713, died Feb. 21, 1785, Catarina, born——, died 1785; Dorothy, born 1710, died——; Sarah, wife of Thomas Dodge, died July 9, 1800, and another by name Anna.

Hendrick Onderdonk resided during his life at Hempstead Harbour, and had a son, Andrew, who was several times member of the Legislature, built the first paper mill in America; he manufactured by a then peculiar process the paper upon which the continental money and State Bills of Credit were printed. Also a son, Dr. John Onderdonk, who practiced in New York City as a physician, and was father of the Bishops Benjamin T. and H. U. Onderdonk.

Adrian Onderdonk was born in the house above referred to near the head of Cow Bay, and owned the land at Manhasset now owned by his great-grandson, Andrew J. Onderdonk, and where the Episcopal and Reformed Dutch Churches and the Friends' Meetinghouse now stand; he was a very prominent actor in the success of the Revolution, an ardent Whig during the Revolution; his woodland (now owned by A. J. O.) was cut off by the Hessians, who were encamped at the old Quaker Meeting-house, since rebuilt near by; he was imprisoned by order of the British Government and was also a great sufferer in other respects in person and property in many ways, by reason of his strong devotion to the Whig cause.

His sons were Joseph, George, Lott and Andrew; Joseph died in 1853.

Adrian Onderdonk resided at Success (Lakeville), L. I., about 1730, and must have been born about 1680 to 1690; his name appears as a subscriber or donator toward Success Church erection in 1730. He was probably a brother to Andries (J. O.'s grandfather) or (possibly, but not probably) to Adrian (J. O.'s father). J. O. once said he was once up to Tappan to see him, and was gladly welcomed, etc., etc.

Henry or Harry O. (son of Hendrick) died by intemperance.

Andrew, son of Hendrick, died of yellow fever, which he contracted in New York and died from home—at Brooklyn. J. O. said it was long ago a common tradition in the family that all the Onderdonks in this country descended from two brothers who came over from Holland together and settled in Kings County, and that one of them was killed by a wagon loaded with hay or grain falling or overset upon him. He was probably a bachelor who was killed.

Aaron (perhaps meaning "Auris" for Adrian) Underdonk's name appears among land holders in Hempstead in 1685 in Thompson's History of L. I.

Onderdonks—several of the name must reside in the Helderberg district near Albany or the surrounding country, because the name appeared among the remonstrants or insurgents at the time of the "Helderberg War" in 1840-1841.

J. O. said some Onderdonks reside in Greene Co. I also have seen marriages of several Onderdonks in Christian Intelligencer, as residents of New Jersey, probably Bergen Co., also at Bound Brook.

Peter Onderdonk is the name of a Lawyer, who was Master in Chancery in or about year 1800; so says Col. Stowe in Com. Adv. about 10 to 30 June, 1842.

The name of Aaron Underdunk appears at page 350 of Thompson's "History of Long Island," among a list of the land owners of the town of Hempstead in 1685—probably Aurion (for Adrian). It is exceedingly probable that he was the father of Andries O., who was born in the following year, and grandfather of Adrian O. and great-grandfather of Joseph O. and great-grandfather of Horatio G. Onderdonk. This seems to be the opinion of Henry F. Jones, as appears by the memoranda furnished by him to Mr. Thompson.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir: Your letter of October 3, 1908, regarding the Onderdonk family, has been referred to me as translator and editor of the Dutch papers mentioned in your letter. These papers contain several letters from Kiliaen van Rensselaer to Adriaen van der Donck, the officer of justice of Rensselaerswyck and afterwards lord of Colendonck, but give no clue whatever as to his having left descendants. It is not proved, and I think it is not provable that Andries Onderdonk, who married in 1683 Maria van der Vliet, was the son of the above mentioned Adriaen van der Donck. I have strong doubts on the subject, as there seems to be absolutely no reason for such a change of name in either Dutch or English days. There are plenty of references to Onderdonks before 1700, in fact, too many to mention them. All I can say here is that the above mentioned Andries Onderdonk is supposed to have had two sons, Adriaen and Andries. Adriaen is the ancestor of the Westchester and Rockland County Onderdonks; Andries is the Long Island Onderdonk ancestor.

Very truly yours, A. J. F. VAN LAER, Archivist.

DESCENDANTS OF ADRIAN ANDRIESSEN ONDERDONK.

Adrian Andriessen' Onderdonk married Belitje Hendricks.

He bought land in Flatbush in 1672, and was in the assessment roll there in 1675. In 1677 he and his wife were members of the Dutch Church there. Jan. 12, 1677-8, he bought of Leffert Pieterse lot No. 41 in the New Lotts of Flatbush for 1,000 gulden. In 1680 he paid 5 gl. towards the minister's salary, and in 1683 was assessed for 108 acres in the said town. He made his mark to documents in 1655, 1678, and 1684.

On Dec. 12, 1684, his name appears as Aaron Anderson Underdunk in a purchase of land in Hempstead from Wm. Jacocks. His son Hendrick inherited his father's patent right in that town. (See N. & S. Hempstead Town Records, VIII, 407, 481.)

In the same year (1684) on Oct. 23, William Jacocks sold to Adrian Onderdonk, living in the New Lots belonging to Flatbush, over 100 acres of land at Foster's Meadows, south of Henry Dusenbury's, on by a highway that leads by the meadow side, and so running west 100 rods in length and 100 rods in breadth.

Henry Onderdonk, Jr., in "Annals of Hempstead," p. 58, makes him the probable father of the whole Onderdonk family, and this opinion is supported by nearly every one who has studied the question. As direct evidence is lacking, however, it has been thought best to set forth in the body of this work only what can be proven.

Henry Onderdonk, Jr., a graduate of the University of Cambridge, lived nearly all his entire life at Jamaica, L. I.

James M. Onderdonk, a farmer in Cow Neck (Manhasset), L. I., was the father of Joseph, who was killed in the Battle of Antietam.

Joseph O., private Co. B, 59th N. Y. Vol. Infantry, enlisted Aug. 20, 1861, at New York; lost his life Sept. 17, 1862, at Antietam.

Professor Henry Onderdonk completed his education at Columbia College, receiving the degree of Master of Arts. In 1846 he went to Maryland, where he and the Rev. Libertus Van Bockelen opened a school at Cantonsville, at which he remained until 1853. After filling similar engagements, one at Green Spring Valley, he was in 1861 elected president of the Maryland Agricultural College. His sympathies being with the South, he left the State during the Civil War. In 1869 he took charge of St. James College, which had been closed during the war and was reopened as a grammar school. Here he remained as head master until his death in 1895.

Prof. Adrian Onderdonk, his son, spent the first seventeen years of his life at St. James College (now known as St. James School), pursuing his studies under his father's instruction. In 1895 he entered Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., graduating in the class of 1899. On his graduation from Trinity College he entered the employment of the New York Shipbuilding Co. at Camden, N. J. In the autumn of 1900 he was appointed one of the masters of the Country School of Baltimore, and three years later resigned to take his present position as head master of St. James School.

James Henry Onderdonk, private, of the town of Clarkstown, enlisted at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in Co. D, 128th N. Y. Vol. Infantry, on Aug. 14, 1862, and was discharged for disability on Aug. 5, 1863, and died Aug. 9, 1863. Died in a hospital at New Orleans.

The old house that John built about 1790, now situated in the Kensico Cemetery, is called by county officials the André Lodge, claiming that Major André took lunch there on his way as Captain from Tarrytown to White Plains. This is erroneous, as Major André was executed in 1780 and the house was not built until about 1790.

NOTES BY C. K. BUCHANAN.

If the Onderdonks are not descended from Adriaen Van der Donck then it would seem very few of the settlers in New Netherland have descendants.

That "Andris Adrianse" (Andrew son of Adriaen) or "Andries Onderdonk," who married Maria Van der Vleit in 1683, was the son of Adriaen Van der Donck cannot very well be controverted.

The name Adriaen—not an over-common one—is perpetuated as a given name through the Onderdonk generations, while that of Hendrick (Henry)—a very common one—first appears among the numerous great-grandchildren of the patroon.

We find Andries Onderdonk where we should expect to find him—as his father, the patroon, died in his infancy—among his kin on Long Island, the Rev. Francis Doughty, the latter's son Elias (grandfather and uncle of Andries) and Tomas Ver Donck.

Andries Onderdonk was a "native of New Castle, Delaware." We know the widow of the patroon married Hugh O'Neal of Maryland and settled in the South with her father, the Rev. Mr. Doughty. This indicates they were heretofore familiar with this section. There is, or was, an island named Dinderdonck in the Delaware River, doubtless after the patroon. So it is probable that he was resident in this district. We can assume he was as active physically as he was mentally—a man with many irons in the fire, so to speak.

The name Onderdonck (the name is invariably spelled with the c in Rockland County baptismal records) was interchangeable in Rockland County with Van der Donck before the middle of the last century. My authority for this is the late Rev. Dr. David Cole (Kool!), who was born and spent his boyhood days there. And we find Van der doncks among Onderdoncks listed as soldiers in the Revolution—kinsmen.

Over twenty years ago the writer stated in an article in the Tarrytown Argus that he believed the Onderdonks were Van der Doncks, his independent conclusion then.

Chauncey K. Buchanan, Tarrytown, N. Y. I quote from the "History of the City of New York in the Seventeenth Century," 1909, by Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer:

"Adriaen Van der Donck died in 1655, two years after he returned from Holland. The well-known family of Onderdonk of New York and New Jersey is descended from his son, Andrew, and others called Van Dunck or Ver Dunck also trace back, most probably, to the people's tribune [Adriaen Van der Donck]."

Also, to quote from her work:

"To the Reverend Francis Doughty and a group of his friends Kieft gave a great tract of land on Long Island, where they founded a village at Mespath, afterwards called Middlebury and Newtown."

The writer finds the signature of Tomas Ver Donck attached (with other signatures) to a Long Island document, 166—("Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York," Vol. II, 376.)

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES, FAMILY SKETCHES, ETC.

William Bowne', the Puritan, was born in Yorkshire, England, where a majority of the inhabitants were descendants of the Romans and ancient Britons. In 1630 about three hundred of the best Puritan families in the kingdom came to New England. They were not vagabonds or adventurers, but brave and courageous people, well educated, who had for conscience sake left their homes with no expectation of returning. All were respectable, and many were from illustrious and noble families. Among these came William Bowne and his wife, Ann, with an infant son, John, and settled at Salem, Mass., in 1631. They did not remain long at Salem, on account of their sympathy with the Baptists, and about 1645 removed to Gravesend, where William Bowne was granted a "planter's lot" in 1646, and his son, John Bowne, in 1647. William Bowne was one of the Magistrates of Gravesend, L. I., in 1657. In 1664, with his sons, John, James and Andrew, he emigrated to Middletown, Monmouth Co., N. I.

In 1663 some 20 English living on Long Island (among whom was John Bowne), nearly all of whom were Puritans, at one time living in New England, obtained permission from the Dutch Governor Stuyvesant to settle on the banks of the Raritan, and in Dec., 1663, they sailed across the bay to what is now Monmouth Co., where they made the first purchase from Poppomora, chief of the Navesink Indians.

Charles the Second, King of England, made a royal grant and patent of land, dated March 12, 1664, to his brother James, Duke of York, which included all of the present State of New Jersey. King Charles sent out a fleet, with a military force under command of Sir Robert Carr and Colonel Richard Nicolls, who had been commissioned Governor by the Duke of York. In August, 1664, the fleet arrived at New Amsterdam, and after a vain effort to arouse the Dutch burghers to defend the city, Governor Stuyvesant surrendered on the 27th of the same month.

In the fall of 1664 Gov. Nicolls issued a proclamation to promote the new settlements under his jurisdiction, under the conditions that the planters must purchase from the Indian Sachems and be recorded before the Governor. All such lands purchased to remain in the possession of the purchasers and their heirs, as free lands to be disposed of as they please.

Having already complied with the first conditions of Gov. Nicoll's proclamation, Capt. John Bowne and the company of English made application to the Governor for a grant to cover the purchases already made and others which they intended to make. This grant embraced all of the present county of Monmouth and a part of Ocean and Middlesex counties. It is dated April 8, 1665. It is known as the famous "Monmouth Patent," and was granted to the following patentees: William Golding, Samuel Spicer, Richard Gibbons, Richard Stout, James Grover, John Bowne, John Tilton, Nathaniel Sylvester, William Reape, Walter Clarke, Nicholas Davis and Obadiah Holmes.

Having received the patent from Gov. Nicolls, the patentees and their associates immediately began their settlements. John Bowne, Richard Stout and three others, with their families, five families in all, came and made their settlements in the spring or summer of 1664, nearly a year before the patent was issued.

The first entry in the Town Book of Old Middletown, dated Dec. 30, 1667, shows that William Bowne was granted lot No. 8 at Portland Point. William Bowne died at Portland Point in 1677. Letters of administration were granted to his son, Capt. John Bowne, of Middletown, N. J., to administer on the estate of his father, William Bowne. He is spoken of as the eldest son. The children of William Bowne and his wife, Ann, were: John, born in England; James, born in Salem, Mass., 1636; Andrew, b. in Salem, Mass., in 1638, and Philip, born in Salem, Mass., in 1640. They also had daughters.

Capt. John Bowne², son of the emigrant, as mentioned above, was one of the first five families to make a permanent settlement. He was a leader in purchasing land from the Indians, and was one of the patentees of the Monmouth grant.

His sympathies with the Baptists had compelled him to leave the Massachusetts colony. death in 1684, Capt. John Bowne seems to have been the most prominent citizen of the country, highly esteemed for his integrity and ability. He was deputy to the first Assembly, in Governor Carter's time, which met May 26, 1668, the members of the Lower House being then called "burgesses." In 1675 was again deputy, and in 1683 in the first Legislature under the twenty-four proprietors he was a member and the Speaker. He also held other positions of trust... In 1677 was commissioned as president of the court to hold a term in Middletown. In 1683, shortly before his last illness, he was appointed major of the militia of Monmouth County. Capt. John Bowne was one of the founders of the Baptist Church at Middletown, N. J., which was constituted in 1668, being the first Baptist organization in the State of New Jersey. "The first who preached at Middletown was Mr. John Bowne, and he gave the lot on which the first meeting house was built." He died Jan. 3, 1684, universally recognized as an upright, conscientious Christian man.

He married Lydia Holmes, dau. of Rev. Obadiah Holmes. Lydia Holmes was a sister to Judge Obadiah Holmes, of Cohansey, N. J. There was also another brother, Jonathan Holmes, who had descendants who married into the Onderdonk family.

THE GENERAL ASSOCIATION.

On the 17th of July, 1775, at Orangetown, Province of New York, the most important meeting ever held in this locality took place, probably, at the Yoast Mabie House. At this meeting every man was called on to declare his allegiance to the cause of liberty, or be reckoned among the enemies of his country. The meeting was called to consider the following:

"General Association adopted by freemen, freeholders, and inhabitants of the city and county of New York, on Saturday, the 29th of April, 1775, and transmitted for signing to all the counties in the province.

"Persuaded that' the salvation of the rights and liberty of (America) depends, under God, on the firm union of its inhabitants in a vigorous prosecution of the measures necessary for its safety, and convinced of the necessity of preventing the anarchy and confusion which attend the dissolution of the powers of the government, we, freemen, freeholders, and inhabitants of Orange Town, being greatly alarmed at the avowed design of the ministry to raise revenue in America, and shocked by the bloody scenes now acting in the Massachusetts Bay, do, in the most solemn manner, resolve never to become slaves; and do associate under all the ties of religion, honor, and love to our country, to adopt and endeavor to carry into execution whatever measure may be recommended by the Continental Congress, or resolved upon by our Provincial Convention, for the purpose of preserving our constitution, and opposing the execution of the several arbitrary and oppressive acts of the British Parliament until a reconciliation between Great Britain and America on constitutional principles (which we most ardently desire) can be obtained; and that we will in all things follow out the advice of our general committee respecting the purposes aforesaid, the preservation of peace and good order, and the safety of individuals of private property."

Among the 39 signers to the above General Association were Abraham Onderdonk, Daniel Onderdonk, and Adrean Onderdonk.

"These are the names of the persons who have signed the General Association. A true copy of the originals taken and compared by me. Per order of the committee.
